Introduction to Victron Live

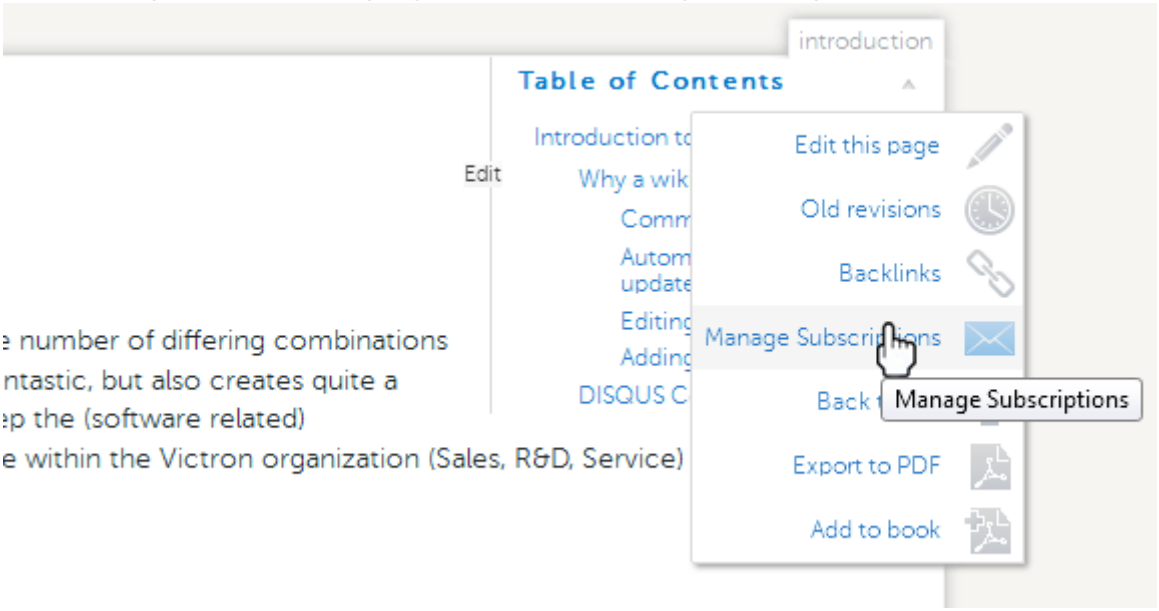

Why a wiki?

Victron Software and hardware products develop at an incredible pace. The number of differing combinations and configurations has exploded with the advent of the Assistants. This is fantastic, but also creates quite a challenge: to maintain up to date documentation. This wiki allows us to keep some of the (software related) documentation up to date far more easily and as a live document.

Automatic email on updates

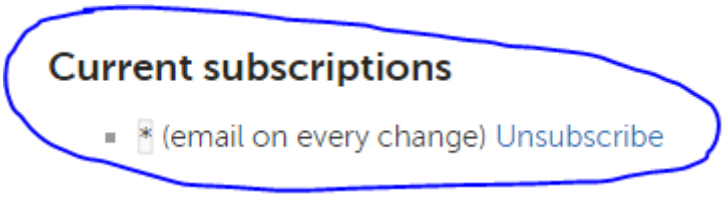

It is possible to get an email notification when documentation is updated.

1. Register as a user and log in.
2. Go to the start page of the wiki
3. Click the envelope icon in the top right sidebar to manage subscriptions:

4. We recommend the daily digest email, and the wildcard (*).

If all is done well, the current subscriptions overview, available from the same Manage subscription button, looks like this:
